Dear King Community:

I hope that this latest update finds you and your family and friends healthy.

As you are aware, COVID-19 remains in our communities, remains very contagious, and puts people in Wisconsin at-risk of getting sick, particularly those in long-term care facilities. It is in this atmosphere that I am again sharing with you that there are additional cases of COVID-19 at King among staff.

One Ainsworth Hall staff member tested positive and is asymptomatic. This is part of our ongoing universal testing for COVID-19. Public Health has instructed this employee to self quarantine per the CDC guidelines. One additional staff member is also self quarantined due to potential exposure, per the CDC guidelines. This is the first new case in the building since I reported to you in May.

We understand that the continued presence of the virus at our Home is stressful. We want to assure you that we are doing all we can to keep members and staff healthy. That said, we are not immune from what is happening in the surrounding community. Please continue to follow the Safer at Home guidance and encourage your family and friends to do the same. By staying home as much as possible, social distancing (stay at least 6 feet away from other people) and wearing masks when we are out, and washing our hands thoroughly and regularly, we are collectively helping to keep our community healthy.

If you have any questions, I am happy to address them.

Sincerely,

Tammy Servatius
